

Acknowledgements

As a relatively new comer to the state of Texas I have the pleasure to now call it my home. Learning its criminal and juvenile justice system truly adds meaning to the saying: "Everything is bigger in Texas." I truly thank all of my students, professional colleagues and friends who have provided significant pieces to the puzzle that has created my knowledge and thirst for understanding the system, and preventing juvenile delinquency.

I would be remiss if I did not thank my co-authors who assisted me with this project on rather short notice.

Comments and suggestions concerning the text are welcomed at: Everett B. Penn-pennev@uhcl.edu

--Everette Penn

About the Authors

Lisa Jones is an Associate Professor of Multicultural Education in the School of Education at the University of Houston- Clear Lake. She holds a Principal Certification from Prairie View A&M University and a Doctorate in Historical, Social, and Cultural Foundations from the University of Houston. She is currently an Executive Board Member of the National Association of African American Studies & Affiliates. She has recent publications in Kappa Delta Pi Record and the Journal of Intercultural Disciplines. Dr. Jones's research interests include multicultural education courses online, minority student achievement and the stressors of teacher expectations, and the cultural identity of students.

Lindsey Kane is a graduate student pursuing masters degrees in counseling and criminology at the University of Houston- Clear Lake. She currently volunteers organizing Teen Court programs in Houston.

Carmen Laffey received her Masters of Arts in Sociology from the University of Houston – Clear Lake. She began working as a Harris County Adult Probation Officer in 1986 until 1998 when she enhanced her career by joining the United States Southern District of Texas Pretrial Services Agency as a bond investigator and supervising officer. She became a licensed private investigator in 2005. Additionally in 2005, she started her own company featuring PI work, Mitigation Specialist work and Sentencing consultant. As a sentencing expert and mitigation specialist, Ms. Laffey has been asked on behalf of defense attorneys to testify in juvenile certification hearings for Capital Murder Offenses in order to provide mitigation explanations for judges not to certify a juvenile to adult court.

Everette B. Penn is an Associate Professor of Criminology in the School of Human Sciences at the University of Houston- Clear Lake. He earned his Ph.D in Criminology from Indiana University of Pennsylvania. He currently serves as the Chair for the Division on People of Color and Crime for the American Society of Criminology and President of the Houston/S.E. Texas Fulbright Alumni Chapter (Egypt 2005). He was a founding faculty for the Ph.D Program in Juvenile Justice at Prairie View A&M University. His research interests include juvenile justice, homeland security and criminal justice education issues. He has numerous journal and book publications including: Race and Juvenile Justice (Carolina Academic Press 2006) and Homeland Security and Criminal Justice: Five Years After 9/11(Routledge 2007).

Tracy S. Penn is an Associate Lawyer with Gardere Wynne Sewell, LLP. She earned a jurisprudence degree from Thurgood Marshall School of Law. Prior to that, Tracy worked for several years in the healthcare industry and with juvenile delinquents as a family and behavioral therapist in Harris County, Texas. Tracy is also licensed as a professional mental health counselor.

Danny Pirtle completed his Doctoral work in Juvenile Justice at Prairie View A & M University. Danny most recently worked as an Intake Probation Officer with the Harris County Juvenile Probation Department. He is currently an Assistant Professor at Holy Family University in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. His research interests include female delinquency, juvenile placement evaluation, and probation/parole issues.

Ruby G. Preston holds a Master of Arts degree in Clinical Psychology from Texas Southern University in Houston, Texas. She is currently self-employed as a contractor for counseling services and consultation. She was employed for nearly fifteen years as a caseworker for Harris County Child Protective Services in Houston, Texas. Mrs. Preston provides individual and group counseling services to juveniles on probation through the Harris County Juvenile Probation Department. She is a Past President of the Houston Chapter Association of Black Psychologists and has served on the planning committee for the National Association of Black Psychologists Annual Convention.

Ruby Shaw is a juvenile justice attorney in Harris County, Texas. She is currently a doctoral candidate in juvenile justice at the Prairie View A&M University.

Felix Simieou is an Assistant Professor, in the Educational Leadership Program at the University of Houston - Clear Lake. He teaches in the area of the Administration of Special Programs. He received his Doctorate Degree in Educational Administration with a cognate in Educational Policy at Michigan State University in East Lansing, Michigan, focusing his studies on parent involvement in low-socioeconomic schools. His research interests focus on School and Community Partnership, Student Discipline and Effective Schools.

Jennifer Tanner is a graduate student in the Criminology Department at the University of Houston Clear Lake. She plans to pursue a Ph.D in Criminology or Criminal Justice upon graduation. She is an officer in Alpha Phi Sigma Zeta Upsilon Chapter at the University of Houston Clear Lake.