

Availability of health resources is an important structural factor in health. This primary health care center in rural India does not have a pharmacist. A filing clerk makes decisions about who gets what drugs.