

People gather to protest gun violence and call for sensible gun laws outside the White House in 2016. Protests are one way citizens try to keep a government accountable and influence policy.