

How does a person with mental illness see the world, the future, and herself?