

Crossword Puzzle

Across

3. a document that is created using the writing style format detailed in the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association
5. a 1- to 4-hr timeslot during which time many authors stand near their poster ready and open to answer questions or talk about their work with interested attendees

Down

1. a written comprehensive report of findings from previously published works about a problem in the form of a synthesis of previous articles or as a meta-analysis
2. a procedure used by scientific journals in which a manuscript or work is sent to peers or experts in that area to review the work and determine its scientific value or worth regarding publication
4. a concise description of a research study in the form of a display of text boxes, figures, and tables on a single large page